WHITE LIGHT FROM OIL LAMPS NOW

Government Tests Prove New Light Beams Electric—Sensational Invention

A new lamp has recently been invented which burns common kerosene oil and produces a soft, white light said to be even better than electric or gas. Tests by the Government and leading universities prove this new light is superior to ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise, is simple and economical, requires no pumping up and has been approved by the Underwriters for insurance.

The inventor, P. D. Johnson, 639 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send one of these new lamps on ten days' free trial, or even give one to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for particulars. Also ask him to explain his agency proposition.

Make this an Electrical Christmas

THE time has passed when gifts were selected haphazardly without giving thought to appropriateness, without regard to usefulness, without proof of durability, without a realization of intrinsic values.

In these days thoughtful people are selecting Electrical Gifts thus not only raising the standard of gift giving without increasing the cost to the giver, but bringing greater happiness and a more enjoyable Christmas to those who receive them.

Electrical Gifts, the products of our best manufacturers, indicative of proven quality and value, are available in such great variety that wise gift buyers are confining themselves to electrical ones for every purpose and person; family relations—from baby to grandfolds; business associates and customers; and all others whom they particularly wish to please.

There is a hint in these facts. There is every good reason—price, quality, appearance, durability, appropriateness, variety, acceptability—to make Electrical gifts your choice for every member of your family and all others whom you wish to especially remember.

CHANGING ELECTION METHODS.

There is nothing new in the proposition of the so-called Progressive bloc to change the time of inauguration of the president or to have the congress elected in November go into office two months after such election. Old methods of travel, slowness with which news of successful candidates reached Washington, the care of the fathers in preparing for the selection of a president—all had to do with the establishment of the present constitutional system. There have been reforms written on such proposals for change. The fact that Washington was inaugurated on April 30th has had much to do with the suggestion of that date for the inauguration.

Another reason the constitution makers held the sessions of congress off for a year was the understanding of psychology. They knew political revenges were possible and that the legislation which seemed to be the thing of the time of a political campaign might fade into insignificance in a few months. Far from being vitally necessary for the welfare of the people a plan to have congress begin early and stay late is a detriment. We need more business and less law, more common sense and less legislation. Making a political issue of a time for a president to be inaugurated is to quarrel over a style of wearing the hair or when the lodge should meet, or whether the auto or the railroad will be the transportation means in the future.

Then too the fact that congress is elected in November and its members begin their term of service and start drawing salary on the following 4th of March, but in actual practice under the constitution, unless called in special session, do not begin the work of formulating legislation until 15 months after election, has been discussed in magazines, books and newspapers for a century. It can hardly be called a new issue nor a basis for a definite political policy. We have a hesitation about monkeying with the constitution and have been willing to let things go on much as they are. The British have a way of bringing an indefinite term of office to a close by royal order. Then a new parliament is elected and immediately begins to serve, usually overthrowing what has been done by the predecessor so far as it applies to purely political policy. The Progressive bloc seems to have taken a leaf from the British book and about the only thing left out is proroguing congress by order of a king.

The city of Washington has fought the change in the date of inauguration other than to be willing it should be advanced to a warmer and more pleasant time of the year. March 4th in Washington is usually stormy and many a president has stood on the East front of the capital facing a bleak day and a stiff, icy wind to deliver his inaugural address. These changes in the date of inauguration to January instead of March and that Congress begin sessions in January following elections, are only academically incident to what the progressive bloc proposes in the way of electing a president. That is another old and oft discussed plan—the selection of a president by direct vote of the people. The electoral system was made in great measure to fit the plan of representative government and maintain the state as an organization with its equality recognized. It was the original idea that one state, no matter what its population, should have no more power than any other state. That was carried to the ultimate in the senate representation, Nevada having as many senators as New York. Were it otherwise we would have the same conditions that arise in legislatures where the larger cities dominate law making.

Electing a president by popular plurality vote would be one thing. If by a majority, another. Take the total majorities given to presidential candidates now in many smaller states and add them all up and they would be far less than that of Pennsylvania with 38 electoral votes. It is practically certain that Pennsylvania is republican. But it took the votes of Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming (eight states) in 1916, to offset the Pennsylvania electoral vote and the popular majority would have also been overwhelmed by the one state's plurality.

Under the plan for election of a president proposed by Sen. Norris, which is not new at all—if a candidate does not receive a majority of the popular vote the election will be thrown into the House of Representatives as it was in the days of Adams. The figures of the last 66 years reveal that of the presidents elected, none had a popular majority save Lincoln for the second term, Grant both terms, and then we skip to McKinley both terms, Roosevelt and Taft, and then to Harding, Buchanan, Lincoln for the first term, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, both terms, Harrison and Wilson were elected without a popular majority. Woodrow Wilson never would have been elected president except by the House of Representatives under the progressive bloc proposed law. Harding had a clear majority, overwhelming and complete.

A study of this history of presidential votes will make it clear that with the number of candidates we are likely to confront in election hereafter, the proposed law is merely a way of throwing the election to the House and that for the vice president, into the senate. It sounds well—this electing a president by popular majority, but that it calls for more than mere sounding phrase-making, is clear. Out of 17 presidents since 1856 eight have had a majority vote, the other 9 would have been selected by congress. Cleveland

NAMING PULLMAN CARS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—For more than a half century the favorite guessing game of the traveling public has been to speculate as to who names the Pullman cars and why. To see romantic names, Lancelot and Adonis, and names such as Farragut and Hector, suggesting heroic deeds, emblazoned on the side of Pullman cars long ago aroused train passengers to curiosity.

The public enjoyed guessing, and imagination ran riot. Passengers have solemnly averred that the Pullman company employs an official "namer of the cars" with the chief duty of seeing that each new car is fittingly and artistically named. Others have insisted that employees of the company are encouraged to suggest names, and that a dollar is given for an acceptable suggestion. One extravagant explanation was that the company long ago made a large collection of slips bearing names of states, cities, famous folk, flowers, etc., and that these slips are kept in a large box and one is ceremoniously drawn forth by the president of the company to christen a new car.

The majority of the stories are offshoots of the most popular explanation. This was that the daughter of the founder of the Pullman company, now Mrs. F. C. Lowden, began to name the cars when she was a girl and received a reward for each idea. The sum she was supposed to receive was generally limited only by the imagination of the teller of the tale. Some who stuck to probability said that she received a dollar a car. Others said $100, and the most fanciful narrators whispered that $20,000 a year was the sum she drew for her services.

Now the Pullman company has denied this interesting story and all of its variations in its magazine for employees of the company. It says "Florence Pullman never had such a job or did any systematic car naming."

It seems the custom of naming the cars arose naturally soon after the Pullman's invention was introduced. The first Pullman sleepers were remodelled day coaches already known by numbers. When Pullman began to build his own cars, letters of the alphabet were used to distinguish the new sleepers from the numbered day coaches. But letters ran out too quickly and numbers were unsatisfactory because of the need for readily distinguishing the Pullman cars. The only thing to do was to name the cars and this was done.

Using names for such a purpose was not altogether an innovation. Back in 1825 the first real passenger railway carriage had been given the name Experiment. Early types of locomotives bore individual names, such as Novelty, Rocket, and Old Tom. And by the time the Pullman car was being developed engines were regularly named, most frequently for prominent men.

The Pullman company says: "Car A was really the first named car since it was called Pioneer. It was the first car built from top to bottom by George M. Pullman and it cost more than $29,000. It was hurriedly completed in 1855, so it might form a part of the train that bore the body of Abraham Lincoln from Washington to Chicago and thence to its final resting place at Springfield. There can be no question as to the aptness of the name Pioneer, since this car led the march of progress into the waste lands of unimproved railroad travel."

After the Pioneer came the Atlantic, Pacific, Aurora, City of Chicago, and Omaha. The first hotel car, a sleeper with a kitchen at one end and movable tables placed in the sections, appeared in 1867, and took as its title "President." Other hotel cars, named mostly for cities, were added until the modern dining car replaced them. The first of Mr. Pullman's dining cars, bearing the name Delmonico, was operated on the Chicago and Alton line in 1868. The Maritima, the first parlor car to be introduced to the United States, appeared in 1875.

There were no precedents for naming railway cars, and so the range of names at the command of officials of the company was practically unlimited. Names given dogs and other pets conform largely to custom. People and towns are named along traditional lines. But there was nobody to say what sort of name was suitable for a railway coach, and the company took advantage of this to associate a wide variety of names with its cars. Some attempts were made to use classes of names for certain types of cars. At first the parlor cars were given feminine names or those of birds or flowers. But the company found that railroads often wanted cars named after towns along their lines, and this made it impossible for an exact system to be followed. In the first Pullman train running between Chicago and New York, the sleepers were named after countries and the dining cars after celebrated French chefs—Savarin, Albertin, Magdelin, Valentin.

Though the officials who name the cars have all the fields of literature, history, geography, botany, and biography to search for names, christening new cars becomes a problem. The company has 7,214 standard cars, which means the selection of 7,214 names. And remember, parents of families of 10 sometimes write to the papers for help in naming the new baby!

The officials of the company are as careful in their selection of names as any parent would be. The names painted on the car sides go up and down the country for the public to see and remember. Perhaps curiosity aroused by a name may lead people to look it up in reference books. So when it was recently depicted on an official list to have conducted elaborate research to make certain that "the behavior of the ladies and gentlemen so honored was everything that it should be, irrespective of the customs of the age in which they lived." Some of the ancient names stood the test: Antiphan, oldest of the famous ten Attic orators; Diogenes, of lantern and barrel fame; Hesiod, a Greek poet, and Hippocrates, father of medicine.

The company points out that sequences have often developed in the naming of cars. A car named Charles Dickens led to others being called Pickwick, Dodson and Trotwood. A number of characters from Kipling, Irving, Tennyson, and Scott have been immortalized on cars, and there are other familiar references. There is a Dever and a Manilla, a Columbus and an Isabella, a Ruth and a Naomi. The Napoleon group contains seven names associated with him. There are 11 liquid sounding names taken from the wine list, but to balance the impression of Moselle, Bourbon and Burgundy there are other cars—of more recent date, no doubt—named Temperance and Aqua.

In 1833 and Hayes in 1876 were elected with even pluralities against them but not majorities.

President Harding will have several sets of blocs for Christmas.

We say farewell to Madeline without a tear and as for Burch we are willing never to print another line concerning him. We have other fish to fry including the new Third party.

"One of the bone-dry places in the United States," says Uncle Miram Haversack, "is in the oil well in which I bought stock."

The saloon-drug store was a hyphenated plague spot introduced to Kansas and Maine but it has spread to the nation. It is about time to wipe it out.

From his insistence on visiting all the celebrated tombs in the United States one gathers that Clemenceau thinks most of the great people in America are dead.

THE LAKE.

Hearing the thunder of a lake.
 Which always the rushing waters make,
 I watched the waves come in and break.

Like men with silver in their hair,
 Who've lived their time and breathed their care,
 They came to shore and vanished there.

Oh, they had traveled far and been
 Through troubled days, and days serene,
 Much they had known and much they'd seen.

Gray-beards, they seemed, of many years,
 Wise men in laughter and in tears,
 Ending their turbulent careers.

And then, at last, they reached the shore,
 And with one glad, exultant roar
 Found rest and peace forevermore.

Wave followed wave, the great and small,
 Even the giants, towering fall,
 Sharing the common fate of all.

Waves on the Sea of Life are we,
 Journeying on shorewards constantly
 Where we shall find eternity.

Oh, man of might—or, giant mind,
 Reaching the port that all will find,
 Would you turn to look behind?

If you could stay to look upon
 The sea o'er which your life has gone,
 You'd see the millions rushing on.

Millions, like waves upon the lake,
 Seeking the shore, at last to break
 Where worldly pomp is no difference make.

Home come the tellers one by one,
 Finding the grave's oblivion,
 But always Life keeps on thundering on.

Who's, Who Today

JAMES COUZENS.

Mayor "Jim" Couzens of Detroit, appointed by Governor Greenback of Michigan to fill the vacancy in the U. S. senate left by the resignation of Truman H. Newberry, is one of the richest is not the richest man in the senate. He is said to have made $33,000,000 on less than $2,000 he invested in the Ford enterprise.

Couzens is in the senate as a republican, but is not a strong party man. The millionaire mayor was born in Chatham, Ont., in 1872. After graduating from high school he worked as a news butcher on the Erie and Hudson railroads. He studied telegraphy and, when he qualified, was given a position with the Michigan Central and in 1891 took a position as bookkeeper with the Malcolmson Coal company.

Couzens joined the Ford Motor company as a bookkeeper when Malcolmson went over to that organization. Because of his unusual ability, the bookkeeper was soon promoted to sales manager and then came his appointment as vice president. He resigned as vice president in 1915 but remained a director until 1919. When Couzens sold his interests in the company to Ford he is said to have received approximately $30,000,000.

As mayor, Couzens 10 years sought to convince the people of Detroit of the necessity of a municipally owned street railway system, and in 1920 the measure was adopted by the polls by a large majority. Couzens married Margaret Manning of Detroit in 1898. He has a daughter who is attending an eastern school.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 8, 1882.—Doll Best will appear as Red Riding Hood and Charley Postwick as Grandpa in "Grandpa's Birthday," as Lapping had next Monday night for the benefit of a free library. Two tramps and two drunks were seen in municipal court this morning. One had friends in Footville and was allowed to continue his tramp in that direction. The drunks were given sentences, one of two days, the other of three.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 8, 1892.—Malcolm O. Moutat and Edward J. Stevens, Beloit college, are to talk at a celebration to be held there soon. Grading on Caroline street cost $20.02 for the street. There are 15 property owners on the street.—J. E. Gleason and George Charlton were hurt in a smash-up near Darington last night.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 8, 1902.—The first touch of winter came today, with the thermometer around the zero mark.—The new confessional at St. Mary's church was seen for the first time by the members at yesterday's services.—Sister, elevated terminal depot at Christ church yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Barrington gave the address of the services.

TEN YEARS AGO

Dec. 8, 1912.—Joe Ryan, full-back for the past two years on the Janesville high school football team, has been elected captain for 1913.—Archbishop S. C. Masser will be in the city tomorrow and will conduct pontifical high mass at St. Mary's church and give a lecture in the evening.—The required number of signatures for a recall of the present city government have been secured.

HUGS IN GRAN DUA'S GUEST

Somebody who dislikes slang criticism of the practice of eating forms of bacteria "bugs," because, for one reason, germs are plants rather than animals. I've heard that point raised before. Germs may be more vegetable than animal in nature, but take the typhoid germ, for instance, and watch it in a hanging drop of water or other fluid squirming about with its innumerable arms, legs or flappers as it'll decide the vegetable kingdom is a livelier kingdom than you had ever been led to suspect.

Anyhow grandpa had bugs in his chest. The bugs were the essential principle and cause of his chronic bronchitis. There were other contributing or predisposing factors, which we have already dealt with in his case. Now he seemed to have nothing left to live with but the bugs. Nature having been propitiated by grandpa's hygienic reform was now an ally and it seemed only fair to offer nature a helping hand in doing the job.

"We'll have another bacteriological examination of the sputum," said the doctor. "Save some in this jar today and we'll send it to the laboratory. As this entails no sacrifice of constitutional rights and no alteration of his present program, the patient acquiesced, and a day or two later the bacteriological report came back, according to which it was found that grandpa was harboring in his bronchial tubes a lousy colony of that ubiquitous enemy of civilization, the pneumococcus, the pneumococcus, the pneumococcus.

And this the bronchitis germ, alias the quincy germ, alias the coryza germ, and several other aliases. And along with this versatile villain, the report disclosed, as a very common and unsuspecting microbe, named streptococcus pyogenes aureus, capable of any dirty work from pimples and boils to sore throat and septicemia.

Not so bad, just two in a row of bugs in the case checked the doctor. "If they're as bad as they sound I'd better arrange for a long ride," gloomed grandpa. "But see here, doctor, if there were any more bugs in my chest, honest injun and all, this laboratory business aside, you could give me some antiseptic medicine to kill them, couldn't you?"

"Certainly I could, but it wouldn't," said the doctor. "No such medicine has ever been found, that is, nothing that will kill germs in the body without damaging the body or killing the man. But we can help your old friend nature dispose of the bugs by preparing an autogenous bacterin or 'vaccine' from the killed bodies of the germs which he had found present. This might be called a 'hair of

Q. How can a lead thrust its tongue out so far? C. M.

A. Its tongue is attached to the tip of its snout and is very thin. It is therefore specially adapted for clinging forward to capture earthworms, sowbugs, snails, spiders and the insects upon which it lives.

Q. Which are the leading states in hair raising? S. M. D.

A. In 1922 Iowa led with 7,540,000; Illinois, 4,045,000; Missouri, 3,622,000; Nebraska, 3,380,000; Indiana, 3,567,000. Q. Please tell me how we can be the best of a pleasant use for hair raising? R. K. N.

A. If the skin is blood stained, soak it in lukewarm water and swab with a piece of cotton. If the skin is greasy stained, wash it in kerosene and soak well. Dry it by covering with corn meal, which will absorb the grease; put on fresh meal from time to time until skin is thoroughly dry. The skin should then be rubbed with a little white arsenic on the inside.

Q. Is anything known about the cost of the voyage when Columbus discovered America? D. P.

A. It has been estimated that the first voyage cost only about the equivalent of $7,000 now. Columbus himself received 1500 pesos, or about $300 a year, as command of the voyage. After the expedition of the other ships, the Nina and Pinta, received 500 pesos a year. The members of the crews were paid as wages a sum equal to $2.50 a month. They received food furnished for food, $1.50 a month per man. The cost of all three ships cost about 14,000 pesos; or about what it costs to fire a single charge from a gun of the present day.

Q. How large was Mt. Vernon in Washington's time? S. A. L.

A. Mt. Vernon contained 10,000 acres, about 15 square miles. It was divided into farms of convenient size which were worked by slaves. The vision of Washington. In 1787 he had 600 acres in grass; sowed 600 acres of oats, 700 acres of wheat, as much more in corn, barley, potatoes, beans, peas, etc., and 50 acres of turnips. His stock consisted of 145 horses, 112 cows, 1000 mixed stock, heifers and steers, and 500 sheep. In 1786 he slaughtered 150 hogs for the use of his family and provisions for his negroes.

Q. What improvements did Thomas Jefferson make in the plough? C. E. M.

A. Jefferson seems to have been the discoverer of an exact formula for the construction of mold boards of least resistance for ploughs.

Southern Mammies

There is one thing that lingers in the memory of anyone who has ever dined out at a restaurant the cooking of the famous southern mammies. It is that dish of white, tender, flaky rice with rich chicken or ham gravy.

In the south where rice is eaten as an all-the-year vegetable, every-day in the week, it is served with gravy, or with golden butter melting through it. The rice is put in a deep dish, whether it will or no, as served rice and gravy with its meat.

There are many other savory southern dishes that every cook should know how to prepare. These are listed in the new booklet this bureau has for distribution. ## Reciprocal Registration ### of Engineers Is Proposed

Chicago.—Possibility of reciprocal registration of engineers with Canada and Mexico is being investigated by a committee appointed by the Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners. Engineers going into Canada cannot practice unless registered in that country. Mexico has given notice that United States engineers will not be allowed to practice in Mexico without equal recognition for their engineers. Rules agreed on provide that an engineer registered in one state may be permitted to practice in other states which are parties to the agreement. Sixteen states are represented in the agreement.

Morton began to laugh.

"The sea is 200 miles away and if I filled my mouth with pebbles I might swallow some."

"The rain has stopped," Dora answered. "We'll walk to the rock on Knob Hill, and you read one of those speeches aloud to me. That will be good practice for you."

She sat on a damp little ledge of rock; a little distance away Morton stood—the old quarry his background and his theater—and read one of Webster's orations in fine style, his voice raised to cover the distance so Dora could hear. Dora unconscious of either humor or pathos in the situation, watched his funny gestures with admiration, and liked his homely, freckled, sun-baked face, it was so earnest and kindly.

Only half hearing him, lost in her thoughts sometimes—it came to her suddenly as he stood with one large hand clenched dramatically, that she was in love with him.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST BAKING POWDER

By H. M. TALBURT:

By Wheeler

"BOOM! CRASH!! ZZZ-Z-Z!" over the desert swooped a thunder storm. Five minutes before it had been as sizzling hot as a newly flipped flapjack and Dotty had been sitting under a ragged old Xucan tree telling fairy tales to rag doll Jenny Linn. And now she was wet as a pollywog, and hiding under a great boulder until the storm passed!

"Golly-moogums! I wish I had an umbrella!" she sighed.

"If you were like I am you'd carry your umbrella with you all the time," said the Stone at her feet.

Betty squeaked with surprise. Could even the stones squeak in this strange Hotj Land? But WAS it a stone? Even as she watched, came a wrinkled black head, and stubby legs. "Oh, you're just a tick!" cried Dotty. "But what's a tick doing way out on the desert?"

"I'm not just a tick!" snorted stranger. "I'm a TORTOISE, which is very different matter. A Desert Tortoise. Turtles have to live near water, the silly muddy creatures."

"I've lived here all my life. My family-I'm Tommy Tortoise, the son Timothy Tortoise, Esq.-are built specially for the desert. My legs strong and tough like an elephant and covered with hard scales to stand the burning heat. My shell is strong and in it I am safe from rude visitors."

"But do you live in it all the time?"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A year ago my husband died and left me with a little girl to support. After the funeral expenses were paid I had only $200 left, which I resolved not to use unless I absolutely had to. My

Bread and Cheese Patties.—Break up the bread into crumbs. Break as many eggs as there are slices of bread, being careful to leave the yolks unbroken in the shell. Beat whites very stiff. Place on bread in little squares. Sprinkle with cheese. Put a nest in each of the whites and drop in the yolk. Cover slightly with the white, salt and top with a lump of butter. Place in hot oven until tops of eggs are golden brown. Bake 15 minutes.

Hot Potatoes—Lamb Chops.—Prepare freshly parboiled potatoes for scalloping as usual—alternating layers of potato with flour, sliced onion, salt and pepper. Then fill dish with hot milk and add the chops. Place in hot oven and bake until chops are placed to taste. Bake in moderate oven until potatoes are done.

Mangoe Salad.—Cut white or red grapes in halves, remove seeds. Cut mangoes in halves and cut out meats which have been cut in small pieces. For fruit salads you can use the following dressing: One can condensed milk, pinch of salt, one teaspoon mustard dissolved in a little vinegar and one-half teaspoon lemon juice. This makes a pint of dressing and will keep indefinitely if left in ice box.

To COOK Cabbage in an Hour.—Cut the cabbage into small pieces, and wash in cold water. In which a teaspoon of soda has been dissolved. Plunge the cabbage in, top downward; leave it uncovered and let it boil until tender. That will be from 15 to 20 minutes. Then drain it out into a colander; drain well, put into a hot dish; add lots of butter, some salt and pepper and serve at once. It will be as delicate as cauliflower, and without the disagreeable smell as an unpleasant odor over the house such as is always associated with boiling cabbage.

To Mark Borrowed China.—To mark cups or plates that are to be loaned for special occasions, apply small pieces of adhesive tape, on which the name of the owner has been written in indelible ink, to the bottom of the dishes by the method of identification will not be poked by the user.

To Improve Linoleum.—Oleiole or linoleum painted over with shellac gives a new look that is not only beautiful, but it gives the surface a non-slippery surface; it will wear longer and the frequency of necessary cleaning is materially lessened.

Oleiole Instead of Paper.—Instead of putting paper on the walls, use oleiole and a higher, heavier grade oleiole.

Getting Rid of a Stubborn Cough Is Child's Play Now

Make the Medicine Yourself at Home. It's Cheap—But You Can't Beat It.

If you want to take care of that bad, hang on cough and do it in a few hours, better get one ounce of Parment (double strength) and mix a half pint at home.

You can do this in two minutes by adding a little sugar and enough water to fill a half pint bottle. You'll travel the world over before you get a medicine that will act so surely and quickly on the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It kills the inflammation, the tickling sensation stops with the first spoonful, the heavy breathing goes and clean membrane free from irritation and mucus follows.

For Catarrhal conditions such as mucus droppings, clogged nostrils and watery eyes, it won't disappoint—ask for Parment (double strength). Speak plainly so that the druggist will know exactly what you want.

NEW EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM PLANNED

State School Leaders Back Proposals to Go Before Legislature.

(By Associated Press.) Madison—A comprehensive educational program, the adoption of which it believes will lead to the rebuilding of Wisconsin's public school system, was announced Friday by the state board of education, of which the state superintendent of public instruction is a member.

This program, backed by the present leaders of the state educational system, will be formulated into bills and brought before the legislature for enactment into law. Its principal features include the following: Creation of a public educational fund from the surplus left in the educational bonus fund, to be supplemented by returns from the annual inheritance tax amounting to approximately $1,000,000 each year.

Establishment of junior colleges in the principal cities of the state to relieve the university of its first two years of training, and afford better opportunities for higher education.

Consolidation of rural schools limiting one room school houses to instruction only the first six grades and building up high school districts in the country. Revision of state aids to equalize the burden of local taxation for educational purposes, and to guarantee facilities for the education of every child in the state. Representation of agriculture and labor on educational boards. Creation of county school boards elected by the people, with broad powers over rural education.

Elimination of college courses in normal schools to limit their activities to teacher training.

Speaking of the public education fund, L. A. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the board, said "it would be wise public policy to place the statutory seven-tenths mill tax in whole or in part in the public educational fund at the earliest time, that it may be distributed to local communities on a basis that will take into account both the size of the educational problem and the ability of the communities to finance it." The initial capital, he said, could come from the surplus from the school bonus fund to be supplemented each year by the inheritance taxes. This feature in 1921 received the support of Governor Blaine.

Urges Junior Colleges

The decision of the state board of normal schools to abolish college courses in normal schools, leads the state board of education to again urge establishment of junior colleges as a means of meeting the higher educational needs of the state. "In order to bring to the small school the highest professional service and the best educational equipment, it is essential that there be consolidation of small schools," the board says in its program. "Efforts should be continued to bring about consolidation of schools, and efforts should then be made to build up junior high school and general high school districts in the country. "There should be a radical organization of the whole state aid for education. The present plan, if carried out, would be a chaotic accumulation of years. State aid should be to equalize the burden of local taxation, to guarantee each child an education, to stimulate educational experimentation, and to secure the earlier adoption of the better enforcement of desirable educational policies."

Representation of labor and agriculture on educational boards is being brought about by Governor Blaine through his appointment of the state board of education's program calls for legislation to require this representation. The board says that "a reorganization of rural education to meet the present educational situation will include an elective school board of three or five members charged with general supervision of all schools in the county, outside of cities the board to select an expert educational officer commonly known as the county superintendent of schools to be its educational adviser and executive officer."

Reorganization of the administrative taxing power to meet the normal der to give the city boards of education taxing power to meet the normal needs of city schools. This program of education calls for state laws which will be asked of the 1923 legislature when it meets in January. Support of the administrative branches of Wisconsin's educational system will go to this measure when they are introduced.

KU KLUX CLAIMS 350 MEMBERS HERE

State Grand Kleagle Says Local Order Not Yet Organized for Work.

Is there a branch of the Ku Klux Klan in Janesville? The grand kleagle of the Wisconsin Klan says there is an organization in this city—and it goes farther. He says there are 350 members here and 500 in Beloit, and continues with a statement that a women's auxiliary to the Milwaukee Klan of 7,000 members will be organized shortly after January 1, followed by similar organization work in other Badger cities.

The spokesman is William H. Wieseman, Milwaukee, who holds the title of grand kleagle of Wisconsin. Surprise to Many

How many, if any, Klansmen, goblins, junior goblins, gnomes and regular members there may be in Janesville, no one here is ready to say. Considerable doubt is expressed here as to the accuracy of the grand kleagle's figures. If there is a Janesville Ku Klux, it is admitted that its actions and meetings, if any, are well secreted because police and others familiar with the city appear wholly ignorant of any activities of the "invisible empire" here.

Mr. Wieseman claims there are 15,000 members in the state, cities outside of Milwaukee having the largest membership below: Racine, 2,000; Madison, 1,000; Fond du Lac, 800; Beloit, 600; Superior, 500; La Crosse, 500; Kenosha, 400; Wausau, 400; Janesville, 350; Oshkosh, 300; Green Bay, 200; Sheboygan, 200. Many other cities have organizations with less than 100 members, it is claimed. Women will wear robes and hoods similar to those of the Klan, it is claimed.

"We have gained 50 per cent in numbers during November," said Mr. Wieseman, speaking of Wisconsin. "Most of the cities outside of Milwaukee now have the members but are not yet fully organized for work."

"Tantle put an end to all my troubles, and I only wish I could find words to praise it all it deserves," declared Harry E. Sumner, 215 4th St., Racine, Wis., when he was in Milwaukee on business recently.

"Before I took Tantle," said Mr. Sumner, "my kidneys were all out of order and the pains in my back were so awful that when I would bend over I thought my back would break. The doctor told me so hard and sudden sometimes they would leave me all played out and I would have little energy for my work. I also had terrible dizzy spells, when I'd nearly fall in my tracks, and my nerves were simply on edge. My appetite went back on me and I was scarcely eating enough to keep going. Even that soured on my stomach, pulled me up with gas and I suffered a great deal from heartburn. "Just when I needed help the most I got Tantle, and four bottles have put me in top-top shape. I have gained considerable weight, eat hearty, my food agrees with me perfectly, and I could do the biggest day's work without tiring. Tantle certainly is a great medicine. Tantle is sold by all good druggists."
